Biography

Branch Strickland

Branch Strickland is currently the Director of Finance and Grants for the New York City Office of Emergency Management. Starting at NYCCEM the same day Hurricane Sandy made landfall, he quickly got introduced to the world of emergency management, spending one month in the Logistics Center during the immediate response.

He previously worked at the City's Office of Management and Budget overseeing the Department of Education's budget, the ACLU and the California Legislature's Assembly Budget Committee.

He holds a BA from the University of California Santa Cruz, and a MPA from the NYU Wagner School of Public Service.
